PERSEVERANCE: DO WE—CAN WE?

The religious life today is a mixed bag. Many in the Episcopal Church are still unaware of the presence and witness of brothers, nuns, sisters, monks, solitaries—religious! In some areas of the country those who have taken on these forms of commitment to the gospel life are still looked at with puzzlement.

The Brotherhood of Saint Gregory is one of the strange animals in this exotic menagerie. It is a mutation: part traditional, part conservative; part contemplative and partly radical—the “Flexible Friars” as Bishop Paul Moore calls us.

We are in a world today which is suspect: men and women are restless. Some have no apparent reason or course for what they do. The truth is that every person not rooted in a spiritual observance of some kind will remain homeless on earth, a vagrant instead of a pilgrim.

The Brotherhood is coming upon its Annual Convocation this July and we face a week of discernment and retreat; of study and fellowship and sharing. We open the family to six new members as five men and one woman prepare to make their first vows. One among us will make his life profession of vows. “I’m in BSG for Life” is on the t-shirt.

The religious life cannot offer roots to those with no will to grow. It can and does offer a full life in Christ to those who seek to move away from gross individualism and personal infallibility.

It can and does offer new life to those who look at the scriptures with new eyes each day and allow God to lead and guide.

Perseverance: we see it here in the Brotherhood and we hope this community is a microcosm of the larger church. In an ancient hymn for the Transfiguration we read, “Not always on the Mount may we...” Perseverance is the ability to stay on course without always having to be on top of the world. It means we learn from the valleys as well as the hills and peaks.

Perseverance, our soon to be members and professed know (or will know) is a steady plodding away following the Way of the Cross and making no demands on God, but rather waiting for his word.

When our attitude is such, we will find some day and in due time that we are suddenly and brilliantly on the mountaintop!

COMMUNITY NOTES

Europe

Richard Thomas had a wonderful opportunity to be director of music for the European Episcopal Chaplains Conference, hosted by Bishop for the Armed Forces Charles L Keyser. This year's week-long conference took place in Bernkastle-Kues, Germany, in April and afforded the Superior General the chance to visit medieval churches and do some local touring. He enjoyed every minute of his time there.

Long Island

Province II held its Lenten Day of Recollection at Saint Matthew's Church, Woodhaven, Queens, in the Diocese of Long Island. The day was organized by Charles—Saint Matthew's is his parish and that of two of our Associates, Paul E Van Brunt and Virginia E Holloway (who joined the Associates that very day!)—and the day included meditations by William Francis and Christopher Stephen, with Ellen preaching the sermon at the Holy Eucharist. James officiated at Morning Prayer and Richard John at Noonday, and the celebrant was the Rector of Saint Matthew's, the Rev Tracey Mark Williams, who, together with several parishioners, heartily welcomed the Gregorians to their lovely parish church and facilities.

New Jersey

Clare was instituted as Vicar of Trinity Church, Vincentown, New Jersey, on the evening of March 18. By all accounts it was a joyous occasion—especially for Lent!—and she was joined by her sisters, Elizabeth Mary, Susanna Bede and Carin Bridgit. Bishop Joe Morris Doss officiated at the service and Clare's husband, the Rev Christopher Connell, was the Master of Ceremonies. This is Clare's first opportunity to assume the leadership of a parish, and as vicar she will be working closely with Bishop Doss.

Holy Week and Easter Week were exciting this year in Postulant Robert McLaughlin's parish, the Church of the Epiphany, Ventnor, New Jersey. The Bishop Suffragan of Truro (Church of England), Graham James, was present in the parish and celebrated the Great Vigil—including two confirmations and a baptism—on Easter Day he blessed the parish's new statue of Our Lady of Walsingham in their newly-renovated chapel, and on Easter Monday Bishop James led a quiet day for the parish entitled "An English Bishop's Easter Reflections." Word is that it was an Eastertide to remember! The bishop and his family finished their visit by attending a dinner hosted by Robert for them and the parish's rector, the Rev Douglas Baker.

Springtime always provides a good excuse for Elizabeth Mary to travel; she gives new meaning to the title "The Flying Nun"—although she usually drives! In May she attended a four-day conference of the Order of Saint Luke the Physician followed by a visit to her sister's family in Palm Beach, Florida. June found her participating in a five-day Education for Ministry Mentor Training Program in Cape May, New Jersey, and on the 7th she graduated from EFM studies with a celebration at her parish, Holy Trinity, South River, New Jersey. That barely accomplished, she and Associate Robin McKay departed for the annual Associates' Retreat for the Community of Celebration near Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, followed by a visit with Maurice John and Alban Patrick at Saint Gregory's Retreat Center and Farm in Mexico, New York, on their way to the annual week-long Finger Lakes Conference at Hobart College in Geneva, New York (Elizabeth Mary has long been a member of the conference's planning and design team). All of this and summer has not even begun yet!

New York

On Sunday evening, April 19, Tobias Stanislas was instituted as Pastor of Saint Paul's, Yonkers.

The community's Council had just concluded its spring meeting at Graymoor and most of the members were able to stay over and participate in the institution. Of the four applicants to the postulancy interviewed and approved at that Council meeting, one was also able to stay for the Sunday evening service. Alban Patrick and postulant Robert McLaughlin visited Graymoor for the Council meeting and they remained for the service, as did Elizabeth Mary, and Carin Bridgit came down from Albany for the event.

Tobias Stanislas imparts his first blessing as formally instituted Pastor of Saint Paul's Church, Yonkers.

Bishop Catherine Roskam, Suffragan for Region II of the Diocese of New York, officiated at the institution and celebrated the Holy Eucharist, with a number of local clergy in attendance as well as several of Tobias Stanislas' colleagues from the diocesan office and friends from other parishes at which he has served. Bishop Roskam also blessed the new icon of Saint Paul which Tobias Stanislas wrote for the parish; it was placed in position on the gradine of the High Altar. This is not the first icon to grace that parish: shortly after his coming to Saint Paul's, Tobias Stanislas placed an icon of the Virgin and Child on the altar of the Lady Chapel—that icon was written by Michael David as a gift for Tobias Stanislas' life profession.

An icon of the crucifixion written in Greece now hangs in the pulpit there, a gift from James.

The following Saturday was another grand occasion for the Diocese of New York and the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine—the Ordination and Consecration of the Very Rev Mark S Sisk as Bishop Coadjutor—and the Brotherhood and the Companion Sisterhood were in the thick of things, as usual! In his capacity of Deputy Registrar of Consecrations for the Office of the Secretary of the General Convention, Richard Thomas held sway among the numerous bishops who attended in support of their newest brother bishop. This was one of those rare occasions at which both the Secretary of the General Convention, the Rev Canon Donald A Nickerson, and Richard Thomas were in attendance together; normally, one or the other represents the office at consecrations of bishops. Tobias Stanislas was prevailed upon by the diocese to use his skills as official electronic photographer for the event, and his efforts made it possible to have photos of the service up on the Diocese of New York's web page even as the event was still in progress! (A selection is still on display at <http://www.diocesenyc.org>). In the procession James led the BSG/CSSG contingent, with William Francis, Christopher Stephen, Ellen, Patrick Ignatius and postulant Donna Lise in attendance. Members had a moment to chat with Presiding Bishop Frank Griswold, Bishops Richard Grein, Walter Dennis (our Episcopal Visitor), Catherine Roskam and Don Taylor of New York, Bishop Sisk, Bishop Paul Moore (our former Visitor), and a variety of other bishops from as far away as across the US, from Haiti and from

New Zealand. And the reception on the cathedral's Great South Lawn was as diverse as were those who attended it. Four large tents were erected and housed beverages and ethnic foods from twelve countries/regions of the world! It was indeed a gastronomic festival worthy of the vast diversity which is Bishop Sisk's new home!

Tobias Stanislas led a discussion of C S Lewis' The Problem of Pain at the invitation of the Rev Clair McPherson, Rector of Trinity/Saint Paul's, New Rochelle. His sermon for Trinity Sunday was published on the Internet as part of the national church's series of sermons "Worship that Works," the successor to the earlier Selected Sermons series.

In the spring Novice Patrick Ignatius moved to Fessenden House in Yonkers, taking up residence there and beginning his new ministry as chaplain and assisting Christopher Stephen, the house's warden. Fessenden House has broadened its scope of work with men in recovery as well as those living with AIDS, and the facility is now full to capacity. Patrick Ignatius has completed his second unit of CPE (Clinical Pastoral Experience) and this summer begins volunteering at a hospital and a nursing home, and will also start a teaching ministry at a local prison. On the Eve of Pentecost he was officially sent forth from his long-time parish of Trinity/Saint Paul's, New Rochelle, and joined the friars and Novice Ellen at "the Gregorian Parish" of Saint Paul's, Yonkers, where he is a welcome addition.

At the Spring Council meeting, formal notice of the withdrawal of Doug Cain from the postulancy was made.

Central New York

Maurice John and Alban Patrick attended a L'Arche workshop and day of reflection in Skaneateles. Alban Patrick is recovering from surgery on his foot, and will be back to work soon. Maurice John has been gearing up for the summer and fall seasons on the farm, and working hard at developing new recipes for the Gregorian vinegar works.

Pennsylvania

Susanna Bede presented a faculty recital at Messiah College, accompanied on piano and harpsichord by Richard Roberson, chair of the music department. In the first half of the recital, she sang arias by Cavalli, songs by Barber, Fauré, and Massenet, and four traditional Irish ballads. She was then displaced by The English Lady, who lectured the audience on How to Recognize and Avoid a Bird Song, and How to Applaud.

Chicago

Michael David visited the Chicago brethren and joined in the Palm Sunday Holy Eucharist at the Church of the Atonement, attending a service of Evening Prayer that evening at Saint Peter's. He was in Chicago for the National Art Education Association conference.

Back in Louisiana, Michael David has performed in two concerts, playing "Monastic Songs" composed for him on the concert harp.

Palo Alto

Karekin Madteos is working as the new Office Manager for All Saints Episcopal Church and Downtown Center. It is a wonderfully active parish that serves the community well in the Diocese of El Camino Real. Aside from housing the largest Food Closet on the Peninsula, it has active involvement in the urban ministries program, El Buen Pastor: a tutoring program for ESL, has a day care center on the grounds subsidized by the city, a Peace and Justice Group, a Hebrew congregation and a Parent's Leadership Group that rent space and offices there.

Center, a 136-bed residential facility specializing in care of persons with Alzheimer's disease and related dementias. The facility is operated as an outreach of the Ecumenical Order of Charity, and Francis Andrew is living and working in community with Dale Robert, OC, Administrator of the facility and Director General of the Charitists. He is also assisting as deacon at the Church of Saints Peter and Paul.

On Palm Sunday afternoon, Francis Andrew represented the Superior General and the community at a memorial service for the Rev Canon Charles Mortimer Guilbert, for many years Custodian of the Standard Book of Common Prayer, in a service held at Saint Stephen's Church. Canon Guilbert was one of the guiding advisors in the early formation of the Brotherhood, and it was he who had suggested Saint Gregory as patron.

A sermon on Holy Cross Day AT THE FOOT OF THE CROSS

My best friend's lover died of AIDS two years ago. In the final few years of his struggle with the disease, the virus attacked his brain, and he became paranoid. In his state of dementia, he became convinced that I had an evil influence over his lover, my friend. He began to see his lover as unduly swayed by my influence, in an unspecified, negative manner, and he related to us both as though we were united in a secret coalition against him. As the onslaught of HIV progressed in his brain, and he remained impervious to the drug therapy being attempted, he reached the point where he was convinced that his lover and I were in fact the real couple on the scene, and he was an outcast.

I don't know if you have had any experience relating to someone with dementia, particularly someone who is paranoid, but there is often virtually no way to reach a person living in this kind of hell, and thus no way to make the situation right. This was the case with my friend's lover. Because of this, he was trapped in a hell of insecurity. His lover, my friend, was forced to retreat from our normal pattern of social contact which took place within the context of a large circle of friends. It was necessary for me to withdraw indefinitely from almost all of the contact I had with this group in order that my friend's lover not lose the friends we held in common, whose support he needed to help him say goodbye to his lover and prepare to die.

This complex human predicament could not legitimately be reduced to a simple story of right and wrong, hero and villain. For my part, I was very much shaken by the impending loss of my friend's lover and the multiple losses of friendship and support I experienced. I found myself in the dilemma where the most loving thing I could do was to accept the reality of the suffering of my friend's lover, and its effects on my friend and me. I sought out pastoral assistance to help me, and my counselor invited me to reflect on the cross, and to meditate on the Lord's Prayer, particularly the lines, "Your kingdom come, your will be done." I began to study and pray with the Passion Narratives, and what I found at the foot of the cross surprised me.

I found a sense of spaciousness that was large enough to hold my friend, his lover and me, all together at the same time. In this space the anguish of each of us was acknowledged; no person or alliance needed to snatch the moral high ground, being right at the expense of another person or pair. The injustice of all our pain was fully understood. None of us deserved the pain we had to endure, and none was scapegoated as the cause of the pain. The caring stance in which my friend and I waited patiently and hoped for a better outcome was perfectly mirrored there, at the foot of the cross. In fact, I experienced an abundance of love there, particularly in the form of compassion.

I found a sense of spaciousness that was large enough to hold my friend, his lover and me, all together at the same time.

The type of love I found at the foot of the cross was non-possessive, refusing to limit itself to certain people, or operate only under restricted conditions. It is a generous love that pours out and spills over onto others, gracing everyone it touches with genuine acceptance and profound caring. It is a love that appreciates the infinite worth of personhood. It is a love that inspires relationship. It is a love which cannot restrain itself from building community.

What I found at the foot of the cross was the presence of God, and God was bruised and broken, like me, like my friend and his lover, like all of us. And the Word that never leaves me is "Emmanuel." God is with us.

Robert Michael

From "The Journeyman II"

IX. A COMFORT IN FALLING... SURRENDER

Upon a pillow of riverside babble did I rest my weariness, and eased my travel battered sighs like notes into lonely brook song.
Somewhere between addiction and grace... did I traverse the road of prayer these days, so with need and resignation,
and aspirations of redemption,
a riposte to God's gentle nagging,
I opened like a desert frond young, new, greedy
for rain, and the storm began.

On the watchful green of fertile banks, among the laziness of stones and sun-washed pebbles, waiting to be moved by Providence or pity
to the other sweeter side,
I wept.
Drenched in a torrent of thunderous whys and darkness illuminated, only by the righteousness of my own self-pity, I crawled for infantile succor, beneath the shade of a motherly shade tree, and allowed her gentle silhouette to nurse me to my sleep.
The dream unfolded thus.
The scent of wood was fresh and tingled like autumn breezes.
As if in memory
an infant mewled and cooed,
as I with hammer,
awl and chisel
carved the cradle
on my workshop floor.
With each deliberate stroke of callused hands, and guided iron, the block

gave way, revealing sweetest resting place for the treasure whose tiny laughter wagged
playfully behind the curtain.
My travail proceeded thus mindless of the darkness springing like a coil
from the west.
A door slammed, rattling the heart and with slip of hammer and awl... I routed a hole in that lovely bed, and to my horror, blood issued from the wounded wood,
inflicted by my carelessness.
From round about
I heard... laughter
like a keening wail, assailing my guilt with mockery, blinding me rageful. With darkness visible, veiling the faces of my tormentors, I slashed in terror
with the tools in my panicked grasp, and in my fury, firmly and completely, lodged their sharpness in the bloodied wooden bed.
I let out a cry... and saw him, standing
tears on his worn face, his hand reaching to close the distance... and awoke with silent screaming wrapped around my throat like copper bands, and grief... indelible
as a tattooed scar, and....
